You're not alone. Two weeks ago my account got banned for life. In fact, not my account, but my entire IP address and every account under it. What did I do! I didn't violate any rules. I talked to customer service but they said they couldn't get it back. They also said I was banned for "inappropriate behavior" which is extremely vague. They will also not tell me who banned me and will not let me talk to them. I have to use special software to even be on here now. It's very upsetting. Sarah E, is there any way you could help?

it could be a glitch ban; glitchbans are when there's a glitch in what we can only presume is some form of user database that keeps track of who is banned and who's not, making it seem as if people who aren't banned are banned. they typically last for a short amount of time, but sometimes a couple of days.
